

Date

T: write a recount of a holiday

I went to Lanzarote, which is a Spanish island off the coast of Africa, for a summer holiday for two weeks with my parents. We flew from Heathrow directly to Lanzarote. The main reason we went there was because it is so hot, sunny and dry. I brought sun cream and summer clothes like shorts, t-shirts, sandals and sun-cream with me, as well as a cap to stop my head and neck being sun-burnt. I also brought a towel to lie on and dry myself with when I went to the beach. Apart from going to the beach I played tennis, swam in the hotel swimming pool and went in a submarine. The best part of the holiday was lying on a net on a catamaran with the sea under the net and the spray from the waves cooling me down. A catamaran is a type of boat. The worst part was when I got sun-burnt playing football on the very first day there because I went out without putting any sun-cream on. The skin on my legs and arms turned bright red like a lobster's skin, before starting to peel, which was really itchy.